John's Jealous Wife.

BY EUGENE J. HALL.

JOHN married a beautiful woman; his acquaintances all envied him. He was a handsome fellow himself and many remarked what a magnificent couple they made, whenever they appeared together. She was tall, dark-eyed, finely formed and possessed a personality of the most fascinating and winsome character. Her beauty was of that rare southern type that American poets have rhapsodized over and that every season attracts so much honest admiration at our northern watering places.

Her disposition was singularly sweet and affectionate, her temper usually of the most amiable character. She adored John and he idolized her. The marriage seemed in every respect a most fortunate one and no one who saw them together in their honeymoon would ever have predicted that their marriage could by any possibility be a failure.

John was my youngest brother, a manly, noble looking young fellow, with wavy brown hair, ruddy cheeks, strong limbs and in most respects a very perfect type of a man. I had always been very proud of him. I was fond of his wife and was one of the first to congratulate him upon his engagement. I was the principal bridesmaid at his wedding and having played quite a prominent part in the affair, it is natural to suppose I felt a warm interest in their subsequent conjugal career.

They went to live in a bright and cozy little home that John had previously bought and furnished. I was glad to see them begin life by keeping house for I have always thought it a very foolish thing for young married people to spend the best years of their married life in a boarding house.

I remember the first time that I took tea with them in their new home. How proud John was of the little decorations his wife had made with her own skillful hands, with which to adorn the walls of their cheerful home. Really, as I looked about me and caught the happy influence of the peace and joy that pervaded the place, I almost regretted at that moment that I was an old maid.

At that time John was head bookkeeper in a large establishment and in a fair way to promotion. The liberal salary he received enabled him to live comfortably, almost luxuriously, and to dress both himself and his wife well and during the season following their marriage they went much in society, attracting no inconsiderable amount of attention and admiration.

During the first months of their marriage I thought her to be without a fault. John was graceful, polite and a thorough gentleman, one whom the ladies greatly admired; he was gallant in his deportment, generous to a fault and had such an unpretentious way of making other people feel at their ease in his presence, that as might be expected, he was the recipient of a great amount of attention from his fair friends and acquaintances.

At first Agnes did not seem to notice it; her confidence in John was so complete that she would have trusted him anywhere, but gradually as she discovered that his time and attention was largely monopolized by other women, I thought I could detect a pained troubled expression on her beautiful face. Gradually she seemed to lose her accustomed gayety and would withdraw from the merry circle that surrounded her, to some obscure corner of the room, where, from behind her fan she could closely regard the gallantries of her husband.

One day I said to her that I believed she was jealous of John. She laughed with an affectation of heartiness and said:

"Kate, how ridiculous! Don't ever hint such a thing to me again."

Matters went along smoothly enough in John's house; there seemed to be no interruption to their honeymoon, yet Agnes appeared in some way to have taken leave of her accustomed good spirits and went about the house with a thoughtful and serious look upon her face that puzzled me. That she was brooding over something, I did not doubt, yet upon questioning her she invariably assured me that she was perfectly happy and sometimes almost petulantly exclaimed that she wished I would never refer to the subject again.

One day John said to me:

"Kate, what in the world has come over Agnes? Do whatever I can, I cannot bring back her old time good nature. Really, she acts in such a woe begone way that it depresses me and makes me feel as if, rather than stay at home and spend an evening with her, I would prefer to go down town and have a good time with the boys."

The first year of their marriage went by; their life so far as I could learn had been without any open rupture in their pleasant domestic relations. I could see that Agnes' moodiness increased, in fact, it had such an unpleasant effect upon me that it really made me feel uncomfortable to be in her society. There was never a more devoted husband than John, or more conscientious, honest man. He used to come down to the old home once in a while to spend an evening with me, and after the usual salutation he would invariably say:

"Well, Kate, Agnes has one of her blue spells again."

I determined to discover if it was a human possibility, what the matter was. Agnes was a high-strung, proud-spirited woman, not a creature of the clinging vine order that a strong-minded woman could twist around her finger or shape her opinions. I loved them both dearly and was greatly distressed at the coolness that I saw gradually springing up between them. John was continually planning pleasant little surprises for her, yet somehow she did not seem to appreciate them and knowing how sensitive he was, I realized how much this lack of appreciation upon her part hurt him.

One bright evening as I was sitting by the glowing grate in my cosy little corner I heard the sound of hurried footsteps coming down the veranda. The door was rudely opened and to my astonishment first and then alarm, John strode into the apartment with a pallid face and appearance greatly disordered.

"Kate," he exclaimed, before I could recover from my surprise, "she's gone!"

"Gone, who's gone?"

"Agnes; she must be beside herself."

"For Heaven's sake, what can this mean!"

He thrust a crumpled sheet of paper into my hands; I smoothed it out upon my lap, turned up the lamp that was dimly burning upon the table and read as follows:

> JOHN:—When you read this I shall be on my way to my father's house. Your conduct for the past year has caused me indiscribable anguish but never, until tonight, have I felt what it was to be intensely humiliated. No explanation is necessary. You know your own heart and are responsible for your own actions. You are not the only man who has led a double life, nor I, the only loyal wife who has been meanly and grossly deceived. It is needless for you to follow me for I will never return to your house.
>
> "Your wronged wife,
>
> "AGNES."

I looked up at John. I never saw a more genuine expression of distress upon a human's face.

"John," I said seriously, "I am your sister; you have always given me your confidence. You know you can trust me. Is there any cause or reason for this?"

"Not the slightest," he gasped, "I am not conscious of having committed one act that would not bear the strictest investigation. I can form but one conclusion of Agnes' extraordinary behavior and that is, that she must have taken leave of her senses. I have noticed that she has seemed greatly depressed and absent-minded for a long time. Come home with me, Kate, and let us talk this matter over."

I hurriedly put on my bonnet and cloak and taking John's proffered arm, we walked back in the moonlight to his deserted home, discussing the painful matter of Agnes' disappearance as we walked along the pathway.

Upon entering the house we found everything in the most perfect order; appearances were that Agnes had deliberately planned this strange escapade and had not taken a hurried departure. As I passed through the pleasant little sitting-room I saw a torn scrap of paper lying upon the floor in a corner of a bay window. Being of an orderly turn of mind, I naturally stooped and picked it up and was about to throw it in the stove, when curiosity prompted me to glance momentarily at it. I read as follows:

> "DEAR HENRY:—I want you to keep the matter of which I spoke to you the other night very quiet. Agnes might find it out and it would spoil everything. I will come up and see Dolly some afternoon if I can manage on the sly to get away from my business; if I should come in the evening it might excite Agnes' curiosity. Take good care of Dolly till I come, I will pay all the expenses. JOHN DARLINGTON."

I turned suddenly about, almost too indignant to speak.

"John," I said, "did you write this letter?"

He took it from my hand, glanced at it hurriedly, and indifferently remarked:

"Why, yes, what of it?"

"What of it?" I exclaimed, "do you regard this as a trivial matter? John, you surprise me, I never would have been guilty of such a silly indiscretion."

"Why, Kate, what do you mean?" said John with a look of astonishment. "Why, don't you see that it was a pleasant surprise I had planned for Agnes? She has been wanting a pony and phaeton all summer and the other day I bought Harry Travers' little mare, Dolly, at a bargain. The carriage and harness are to be shipped from the city tomorrow; I wanted to get them before I brought Dolly home and so wrote to Travers to keep Dolly a few days longer and I would pay him for the trouble. I copied the letter and sent the copy to him, throwing this note into the waste basket. Was there anything wrong in that?"

"Wrong," said I, "wrong? You great stupid. That is just what has made the trouble between Agnes and yourself."

The change that came over John's face was remarkable. The reaction from the excitement through which he had passed made him almost hysterical. He sank back in his chair and laughed immoderately and it was some time before I could bring him to his senses.

Well, there is little more to be said, except that the next day John deputized me to bring back his truant wife. I experienced no difficulty in finding her and when she fully realized the ridiculousness of the mistake she had made, she laughed over it as heartily as John had. I had no difficulty in persuading her to return with me. I telegraphed John that we were coming: he met us at the depot with Dolly and the phæton, and I doubt if anybody ever had a more delightful ride than we did as we drove back to John's home.

That adventure quite cured Agnes of her jealousy, and whenever afterward John caught her with a far-away, serious expression upon her face, the mere mention of Dolly's name would make her laugh outright.

STOPS PAIN

Athens, Tenn., Jan. 27, 1901. Ever since the first appearance of my menses they were very irregular and I suffered with great pain in my hips, back, stomach and legs, with terrible bearing down pains in the abdomen. Bryan on Cleveland.

Hon. W. J. Bryan, referring to Cleveland's speech before the Tilden Club says:

"He spoke of his retirement from political activity,' and said:

"'Perhaps there are those who would define my position as one of banishment instead of retirement. Against this I shall not enter a protest. It is sufficient for me, in either case, that I have followed on the matters of difference within our party the teachings and counsel of the great democrat in whose name party peace and harmony are tonight invoked. No confession of party sin should, therefore, be expected of me. I have none to make, nor do I crave political absolution.'

"He not only boasted of his course but put the brand upon those who sat at meat with him. Having asserted that his democratic faith compelled him to leave the party (or resulted in his banishment) he deserted the banqueters as sharing in that faith.

"He is not only defiant, but he insists that party success can only be secured by an open and avowed return to his ideas. Harmony is to be secured not by the suppression of differences, but by the elimination of those who differ from him."

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

County Conventions at County Seats on July 19th, 1902. District Convention, at West Liberty, Ky., July 24th, 1902.

HOPKINS.—HON. F. A. HOPKINS, of Floyd county, is hereby announced as a candidate for the democratic nomination for congress from the Tenth district, subject to action of the democratic party.

DAVIS.—JUDGE AMOS DAVIS, of Morgan county, is herewith announced as a candidate for the democratic nomination for congress from the Tenth district, subject to action of the democratic party.

On the fourth page of our paper today is an advertisement that should interest the men, women and children all over the mountains of Eastern Kentucky. The proposition is as fair as it is simple, and one of our subscribers is just as apt to capture the $10,000 cash prize as any one else. It is simply a matter of close calculation. About a year ago we published a similar contest, the states being Ohio, Massachusetts and Iowa, and the total amount of cash distributed being then $15,000 as against $25,000 to be distributed in the present contest. The capital prize was then $5,000, and it was awarded to M. G. Terry Monroe, Mich., who held certificate No. 70614 and who guessed 1,542,581 as the total vote cast for governor in the three states. Now a good many of our subscribers held certificates in that contest, but not one of them guessed the total vote would be less than 1,600,000. As it was 1,542,581, according to the affidavits of the state secretaries in those three states, not one of our subscribers guessed within 57,418 of the actual vote. Every one of the 1,000 prizes were awarded and we have at this office the name, postoffice address, number of certificate and estimate made by each of them, not one being as high as 1,544,000. And it plainly shows that while our people were content to guess "any old number" there were 1,000, at least, who gave the matter sufficiently close consideration to capture a prize. Now we want to register 500 names in the present contest, and we hope in the end to record the fact that every one got a prize. Give it your attention! Figure with a view of getting the $10,000, and it is certainly good pay for a few hours' work. You can get a prize if you will study well the situation, and that we beg you to do. Begin today by reading the ad, and send in your guess quick so as to get one of the $1,000 special prizes. Bear in mind that it is possible for you to get $11,000 and the best local paper in Kentucky for a cash outlay of $1. Help us bring some of this money to Hazel Green.

F. A. HOPKINS,

Democratic Candidate for Congress, Meets His Opponents at Frenchburg.

Hon. F. A. Hopkins, democratic candidate for congress, spoke at Frenchburg on Wednesday, June 18, during circuit court to a large and appreciative audience. By his manly bearing he made a deep and lasting impression upon their minds and left many friends to wish him success.

He is a fine speaker—up-to-date on current issues and the equal of any man in the district on the stump or in the forum. Although his speech was strong and forcible in the arraignment of the republican party and its methods in favoring trusts, monopolies, concentration of wealth, and of favoritism to the banking and moneyed powers, as well as its unjustified and inhuman assaults upon a helpless and unoffending people, whose only crime is their love of and desire for liberty, still it was so fair and free from abuse that the republicans present could not take offense at anything he said, but were so impressed with his candor and reasoning that many of them went away weaker in their faith than they were before they heard these plain and telling truths.

Such speeches are calculated to do much good for the cause of democracy, for they not only strengthen the convictions of our own people, but catch the ear and address the reason of many thinking republicans who desire fair play and honest government, and have been taught to believe that their party alone could promote this end, but now begin to realize that their idols can no longer be trusted, for drunk upon their success, they no longer heed the welfare of any save those they look to to keep them in power by opening their coffers and pouring into the laps of the bosses the necessary corruption funds to buy up and control the elections.

Referring to the claim of Judge White that it had always been the custom to endorse the work of a member elected to congress by giving him a second term, he said the Judge was mistaken in this.

He said that since this district was made in 1890 Mr. Fitzpatick was the only one who had asked for a second term, and that Mr. White was a candidate against him and did all in his power to defeat him, going so far as to combine with Judge Garner and Mr. Kinsolving, whose joint forces were led by Judge Beckner, who was a goldbug republican, and the joint powers voted to unseat Fitzpatrick's delegates, without the shadow of right for doing so. Consistency forbids the Judge from claiming that which he denied Fitzpatrick in 1898.

He is making a house to house canvass of the district, visiting the houses of the poor as well as the well-to-do, and studying the needs of all those whom he will represent, and it is not strange to say from all over the district the word comes that he is the choice of the people, who intend to see that no combine shall control the convention and defeat him, as in this way alone do his sanguine opponents hope to defeat him.

This being the off year and there being no other officer to elect, the burden of the campaign will have to be borne by the candidates, and for that reason the democrats should look well to their interests and see that they place their banner in the hands of one who is able and willing, by an active aggressive canvass to carry it to victory, and fully hold up and increase our majority and thereby make the election of our judges and state officers easier next year. While on the other hand, a slow, dragging campaign will be followed by a diminishing majority, making fresh burdens for the party in coming elections. Nominate Mr. Hopkins and it is all over but the shouting for no republican in the district will want the nomination against him; as that one cannot meet him on the stump or anywhere else; and this pleasant and winning canvass he is now making will be followed up until the polls are closed in November, and its results will be counted in an increased majority for the democratic party.—*Winchester Democrat.

Dr. Ova Swango was here this week shaking hands with his many friends, all of whom are glad to know that he will soon hang out his shingle as a practicing physician. But if he has decided on a location we did not learn the place.

"A friend in need is a friend indeed." I was your friend when I let you have my goods on time. Now return that friendship by coming in and settling in some way. I must pay my debts and to do so you must pay me.

Respectfully,
MRS. F. N. DAY.

Do not fail to read the advertisement of Madson Institute for Young Ladies, which is presided over by our young friend J. W. McGarvey, jr. It is said to be the leading school for young ladies in Kentucky and among other essentials boasts the most scholarly faculty of any school in Kentucky. Write for catalogue.

Sebron Lacy was accidentally shot on Saturday evening last at the Davis school house on the State road fork of Red river. The particulars as reported are that young Lacy was trying to wrest a pistol from the hands of Constable Cundiff to shoot a young Phipps. The ball entered the outerside of his right hip and ranged down about eight inches, where it was cut out by some doctor, whose name we did not learn.

Commanding views from the college buildings.

The Midway will be the finest and cleanest ever exhibited in Kentucky. Some special features are: Fraternal day, ladies day, governor's day, floral parade, crowning of a queen, Lexington day, Louisville Elk day.

A $700 Olds Automobile will be raffled July 19. Premiums for all kinds of stock, farm produce, and domestic ware. Large trotting and pacing purses and stakes, handsome premiums on saddle and harness horses, etc. And many novelties that will make this a memorable exhibition. It is not a street fair in any sense. Admission 25 cents to all. D. R. TEVIS, Sec'y.

Miss Lula Taulbee will teach the Daysboro school.

Miss Nettie Wheeler will teach the Public Square public school.

Miss Nolda Davis, a sister of our townsman John B. Davis, was awarded a first-class certificate at the Menefee examination, and will teach the public school at Oneonta, at the terminus of the Salt Lick railroad.

Leroy Boggs of our town will this year teach the Caney school in Morgan county, and the mere announcement is a sufficient guarantee that satisfaction will be rendered the partrons. He taught the Consolation school near Hazel Green last year and many of the patrons said he had the best school ever taught in that district.

Joseph Taulbee, who has just graduated from West Point military academy, is visiting his grandfather, Major Wm. Taulbee on the State Road fork. He is now a lieutenant in the regular army, though he has not yet been assigned. He wants to go in the cavalry and before his furlough expires October first he may be ordered to a regiment of his choice.

WEST LIBERTY WISPS.

Dr. J. D. Whiteaker of Caney was in our midst on Sunday last.

Miss Lizzie Henry of Rock Hill visited S. W. Cecil and family on Sunday last.

Miss Myrtle Clayton of Morehead, Ky., who has been the guest of Dr. B. F. Carter for three weeks, returned home on Saturday.

Circuit court convened here on Monday, Judge Kinner and commonwealth attorney at their post. 227 commonwealth cases set for trial, also quite a lot of civil cases to be disposed off.

Sam Wilson of your town, seems to be in the swim and getting along finely with his work on the New Morgan house. He is at present putting an oak finish on the interior of the hotel. When finished it will be a thing altogether too lovely; others are waiting for him.

The members of Highland Lodge, No. 311, F. and A. M. met at their lodge room in the court house St. Johns day, June 24th. The Eastern Star degree was conferred on 50 or more ladies. After which a grand repast was spread by the ladies of the order. It was a gala day for the Masonic fraternity of this place.

L. J. Craig of Portland, Ind., the pioneer oil man of Eastern Kentucky, was here last week. Mr. Craig is president of the Pebble Land Oil and Gas Co., who have leased in the county 32,000 acres of fine territory. Mr. Craig is highly elated over the prospects here and will commence operating in this section on or about July 26th.

At Dr. B. F. Carter's residence—the home of music and beauty—was an entertainment worthy of notice Saturday evening. Among the most noted musicians and songbirds, we noticed the two reigning beauties, Misses Leona B. Carter and Beulah Thomas. Miss Carter is the young lady who recently carried off the prize for being the most beautiful one in this locality.

BEN SEWELL, EDITOR. VOLUME I.—NUMBER 7.

EDITORIAL EFFUSIONS.

IT IS a woeful fact the fools are not all dead yet. Far from it. Today, in every part of the land, there are certain brands of people feasting lavishly on rich cream of double-distilled ignorance. They imagine it wisdom personified. It is sickening and disgusting to witness the lack of business sense, judgment and foresight with a great number of people. This is an age of fierce competition; it is an age golden-bright with opportunities; it is an age of push and go-aheadedness; it is an age of struggles and battles for financial fortunes—an age in which the wise, sagacious and farsighted will achieve success if they but avail themselves of the opportunities. Success does not, and should not, come to the man who is too timid and cowardly to act favorably on a plain business matter that may tend immensely to his own financial advantage. He is a crazy man who does not naturally desire to be well off in this world's goods, and he is a liar who says he has no desire so to be. The ambitious, sensible business world has no place and has no use for fools, lunatics and cranks who have not judgment enough to embrace opportunities that would tell for their own interests. There are more lawyers in this country than those who have license to practice. These unlicensed lawyers will tell the people that if they give an oil lease on their land they had just as well sell it outright and deed it away; that it virtually amounts to such; that companies are swindlers and robbers, and are trying to steal from the people their lands. Those who believe such stuff as that should be found guilty of lunacy in the first degree. Those who believe it should be sent to the poorhouse forthwith by some special act of a democratic legislature; those who believe it would not know a $10 bill from a $100 bill. It is safe and wise for farmers to give oil leases on their lands and give capitalists a chance to develop a product for them that they cannot develop themselves. From all information obtainable companies will commence boreing for oil in this county within a short time. Those who give leases stand a chance to share in the fortunes that will be acquired in oil. Those who don't are in the bandwagon to the poorhouse. Wake up.

ANOTHER Fourth of July—the sacred birthday of American independence—has come and gone. It unfolds one hundred and twenty-six years of civil and religious liberty in American sovereignty that has flourished to such a measure as to astound and dazzle the whole civilized world. The government has been a glittering success in its every step of existence. Its establishment was purchased with millions of money and streams of blood—yea, its very glory has been dipped, washed and sealed in the precious blood of American patriots. Every star that studs the sky of the republic was placed there with shot and shell. From time to time, some have doubted there being an element of stability and permanance in American institutions. Gradually, however, this doubt gave way to a strong belief that our institutions are founded on sound rock-bottom basis of security. Our dominion has expanded from sea to sea; star after star has been added to the splendid galaxy of American states, gem after gem has been fixed in the jeweled crown of republican liberty, and the magnificent torchlight of industrial, commercial and financial prosperty emblazons every hill-top of the republic. In justice to our forefathers, let it be said:

"'Twas they whose sturdy, stalwart stroke
Conquered the forests, and awoke
These realms of ours to art and trade;
The blighting hand of tyranny,
And soon the battles of the free.
'Twas they who made the sages wise,
The sovereign states chose to devise
A constitution strong and sure.
A glorious, gladdening beacon light
To guide the nations in the right."

LOCAL LACONICS.

Miss Tamer Talson, one of Campton's handsome maids, is on the sick list.

Rev. D. E. Bedinger expounded the gospel at the M. E. church here on Sunday last.

Circuit Clerk J. F. Vansant, who has been visiting relatives at Paxton, Ill., has returned home.

Joseph J. Chambers of Stillwater, whose illness was reported last week, is convalescent—in fact has been "turned over" to the cooks.

Mrs. Louisa Hanks and Miss Dora Hanks, formerly of this place, but now of Olive Hill, Ky., are visiting relatives and friends in and around Campton.

Mrs. T. R. Stricklett and Mrs. Charles Hammond of Vanceburg, Ky., have been visiting their daughter and sister, respectively, Mrs. G. B. Stamper at this place.

Barber Bob Carpenter has remodeled and enlarged his residence, and is now ready to take unto himself some fair and blushing maid or widow. First comes, first served. Carpenter is proprietor of the Palace Barber Shop.

Born, on the 29th, to the wife of Frank Campbell, a 12 pound boy. Dr. H. H. Stamper officiated. In all probability the youngster will bear the name of "Judge John Weeden Congleton Campbell."

County Clerk Tutt reports the following marriage license issued: June 24, Clay Absher to Dinvey Hatton; June 25, C. W. Buchanan to Lillie M. Campbell; June 24, Oliver Brewer to Huldy Miller; June 26, Charley Reynolds to Emily C. Cox.

Attorneys G. B. Stamper, J. C. Hurst, C. C. Fulks and Benj. Sewell were out last week securing oil and gas leases. They found a majority of the farmers alive to the importance of giving leases, which speaks well as an evidence of their sound business judgment.

Hon. F. A Hopkins, an aspirant for the democratic nomination for congress in the Tenth, was here last Saturday night to hold a counsel-of-war with the boys in the trenches. A good many of the dems. turned out to be charmed by Frank's flattery. Boys, don't forget that violin music is sweet.

Dr. J. H. Stamper reports the following births: On 26th ult., born, to the wife of A. H. Stamper, a boy, weight 12 pounds; On 27th to the wife of Peter D. Noble of Calaboose, a girl; on the 28th to the wife of G. W. Buchanan of Stillwater, a girl. The doctor also reports the following on the sick list: James Rose of Stillwater, son of David Rose, jr., ill of remittent fever; Daisey Byrd, infant of A. F. Byrd and wife, suffering considerably from nervous attack.

John C. Tolson, the often-defeated candidate for matrimony, last week killed a wildcat on his farm one mile below town. He is to be congratulated that he did not emerge from the fight minus a $25 suit of clothes. Well, old Drum and Fife came in for their part of the honor in killing his catship. Tolson should tender the hide of this animal to S. S. Combs, the popular hotel man, as an evidence that there is no fiction in the write-up of this particular wildcat story. This should cause cousin Sewell to be on his guard as a wildcat is liable to attack him any time. There are worse wildcat fighters than he.

One day last week we saw in the yard of "Aunt Dorcas" Kash in the Flat woods, this county, the finest collection of flowers we have ever seen. She has over 200 varieties. They are in rows, squares, triangles and circles, in boxes, buckets and climbing strings around the portico to the house. Great artistic taste is displayed in the arrangement of the flowers, and the yard is a veritable bank of blossoms, whose frgrance, at this season of the year, taxes the capacity of the olfactories to withstand so many different kinds of sweet odors. "Aunt Dorcas" spends the greater portion of her time in tending and cultivating them.

Made a Preferred Creditor.

"A merchant about to fail invited his creditors to a dinner, and, after seeing his condition, secured a year's extension from all present. One of the number, a relative, waited until after the others had retired and then accosted the debtor, 'Of course, I promised with the rest to extend the time, but you are going to make me a preferred creditor, are you not?' 'Yes,' replied the debtor, 'I'll make you a preferred creditor. I'll tell you now that you are not going to get anything; the rest won't find it out for a year.'

"Mr. Cleveland's nomination would have this advantage over the nomination of any other reorganizer—he would make the democrats preferred creditors and tell them that they would not be benefited by his administration.

"Mr. Cleveland's speech should be read in full. It answers a useful purpose; it outlines the plan of campaign decided upon by the plutocratic elements for which the reorganizers stand. Tariff reform is to be made the chief issue, and the men who voted for Mr. McKinley, the high priest of protection, are to carry on a sham battle with their companions of 1896, while the financiers make the dollar redeemable in gold and fasten upon the country an asset currency and a branch bank system."—W. J. Bryan.

Mother Always Keeps it Handy.

"My mother suffered a long time from distressing pains and general ill health due primarily to indigestion," says L. W. Spalding, Verona, Mo. "Two years ago I got her to try Kodol. She grew better at once and now, at the age of 76 eats anything she wants, remarking that she fears no bad effects as she has her bottle of Kodol handy." Don't waste time doctoring symptoms. Go after the cause. If your stomach is sound your health will be good. Kodol rests the stomach and strengthens the body by digesting your food. It is nature's own tonic.

Bryan's Absence Accounted For.

The absence of W. J. Bryan from the democratic harmony dinner at New York is pretty well explained in a statement given out by Mr. Bryan, commenting on the dinner. At the outset Mr. Bryan says there is no such thing as democratic harmony where former President Cleveland is concerned. He say:

"The banquet given on the evening of June 19 by the Tilden Club, of New York City, was advertised as a 'harmony meeting,' but it turned out to be, what might have been expected of such a gathering, an ovation to the chief guest, former democrat Grover Cleveland. There can be no such thing as harmony between men like him and those who believe in democratic principles, and he is frank enough to say so. He spent no time looking for 'middle ground' upon which to gather together discordant elements. He boldly called upon the members of the party to abandon their convictions and accept the construction which he placed upon democratic principles. He even taunted the party with being a sort of prodigal son, and invited it to give up its diet of husks and return to its father's home."

Vacation Days.

Vacation time is here and the children are fairly living out of doors. There could be no healthier place for them. You need only to guard against the accidents incidental to most open air sports. No remedy equals DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve for quickly stopping pain or removing danger of serious consequences. For cuts, scalds and wounds. "I used DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve for sores cuts and bruises," says L. B. Johnson, Swift, Tex. "It is the best remedy on the market." Sure cure for piles and skin diseases. Beware of counterfeits.

Mr. Bryan will have nothing to do with harmony that does not bear his own trade-mark.—Chicago Record-Herald.

What a Stagnant Pool.

"His administration, instead of being a fountain of democracy, sending forth pure and refreshing streams, became a stagnant pool, from whose waters foul vapors arose, * * * poisonous to those who lingered near.

"Having debauched his party he was offended by its effort to reform and gave comfort to the enemy. Virginius killed his daughter to save her chastity; Cleveland stabbed his party to prevent its return to the paths of virtue.

"And now, still gloating over his present crimes, he invites the party to return to him and apologize for the contempt which it has expressed for him. Will it? Not until the principles of Jefferson are forgotten and the works of Jackson cease to inspire.

"If we are to have reorganization Cleveland himself should accept the presidential nomination. It would be due him; his reinstatement would be poetic justice to him and retribution to those whose democratic consciences revolted against his undemocratic conduct. Of course, he would get no democratic votes, but, being closer to plutocracy than any republican likely to be nominated, he might divide the enemy, and even democrats would have what little consolation would come from receiving their disappointment in advance. —W. J. Bryon.

Poisoning the System.

It is through the bowels that the body is cleansed of impurities. Constipation keeps these poisons in the system, causing headache, dullness and melancholia at first, then unsightly eruptions and finally serious illness unless a remedy is applied. DeWitt's Little Early Risers prevent this trouble by stimulating the liver and promote easy, healthy action of the bowels. These little pills do not act violently but by strengthening the bowels enable them to perform their own work. Never gripe or distress.

It may require a little force to pry Mr. Bryan loose from the notion that he is the whole thing in the democratic party, but it will be forthcoming—Washington Post.

EVERY SUBSCRIBER TO

THE HAZEL GREEN HERALD

Will have an opportunity to share in these magnificent prizes if he wishes to participate in the Great Educational Contest in which these prizes are given.

The subject matter of this great contest is the total vote cast for Governor in the States of New York, Pennsylvania and Michigan on the 4th day of November, 1902.

Every person interested in the science of Government should be interested in the election in these states. An election in New York is always of national import, and in point of political significance, Pennsylvania is second in importance only to the great Key Stone State, while Michigan is rapidly becoming an important political factor in the sisterhood of states. Much valuable information can be gained by a study of the political conditions involved in the elections to be held in these three states.

CONDITIONS OF THIS GREAT CONTEST

Every subscriber who remits $1.00, the regular subscription price for a year's subscription to THE HAZEL GREEN HERALD, will receive a certificate that will secure for him any prize which his estimate entitles him to claim.

In addition to the certificate to each subscriber who remits $1.00, agents will be allowed one certificate for every two yearly subscriptions sent in, either new ones or renewals.

When you send in your subscription, also send your estimates of the total vote for Governor in the three states. Write your name, address and estimate in the subscription blank below and mail to THE HAZEL GREEN HERALD.

The contest will close at midnight, Nov. 3, 1902, and no estimate received after that hour will be allowed. The official certificates of the Secretaries of the three States, showing the total vote for Governor, will determine who are entitled to the prizes, and the awards will be made by a disinterested committee of prominent juges, just as soon as the official figures can be obtained.
